New Farm Account Book Makes Income Tax Reports Easier

The new farm account book now available free to Canadian farmers at all post offices is one of the most remarkable publications ever devised by a government. It is a blank farm account book to help Canadian farmers keep track of their business the whole year round.

The new farm account book is a securely bound 44 page volume, nine by twelve inches in size. Following an introduction, there are 15 pages of information on farmer's income tax and 23 lined and headed blank pages on which he can list his transactions from week to week.

The last section begins with receipts from the sale of crops and needs and covers most other items handled by farmers—livestock, poultry, honey, hides, manure and a dozen other sundry sales.

The next section deals with expenses for seeds, feeds, livestock, custom work, rent, supplies, wages and tools. There are blank columns for capital and revenue from stocks and bonds. The foreword explains how the farmer can calculate his "net worth" and determine what progress or lack of progress, he has made during the year.

In a few minutes the farmer can put down his day's or week's transaction with a minimum of trouble. The new farm account book can save many farmers money in that it can take the place of an expert. In fact, to avoid a similar accounting system installed by court would be beyond the scope of most men on the land.

The 15 pages of farmers income information, which has the advantage of being official are in question and answer form. In general, the theme is that all Canadians who benefit from the nation's vast resources and facilities should contribute to their upkeep and that graduated income tax is the fairest method known to obtain this revenue. The keynote, as stated on page seven, is "fairness and decency."

In this spirit many of the questions show the farmer the best method of taking advantage of every exemption to which he is entitled. If he has difficulty, a district income tax office will advise him; if he should be dissatisfied finally with decisions of local or national authorities, he is shown how to reach the independent Appeal Board.

Business men in towns and cities seek taxation and legal advice from the most highly qualified sources, in order to assure exemptions due to them are claimed. This of course, is economically sound, carefully states these exemptions to prevent the tax burden falling too oppressively at any one point on either individuals or business. Now farmers are given easily understood official advice to enable them to take advantage of their tax rights.

The introduction of the farm account book gives some of the many reasons for income tax items like payment for victory in two world wars, social services, family allowances and the benefits of the several government departments. Other questions and answers deal with direct tax problems. These are sample questions:

Q—What about income tax anyway? What is its justification?

Q—What assurance have I that I will get fair play?

Q—What may I claim $100 for some of my children and $300 for others?

Q—How much should I deduct for personal use of my automobile.

The farmer's income tax return is a six page form which at first glance looks fairly complicated. The new farm account book helps in simplifying this by numbering its headings to agree with the numbers on the tax return itself. For instance, on one of the pages, devoted to expenses under which the farmer lists his payments of wages and board for hired help, he is referred directly to the exact spot where these items should be listed on his income tax return form. Similarly previous columns of sales, expenses and other items are numbered to correspond with the items on the income tax return.

Another feature is the "Schedule of Depreciation Rates" on page 16 where some 75 different items on the farm are listed with their correct maximum rate of depreciation. The

The movement of Canadian food and food products from the farms of the Dominion to the United Kingdom was job of the year for the Canadian Pacific Railway and steamship facilities. Top left picture above shows New Brunswick potatoes being loaded on the Beaverton, one of the Canadian Pacific fleet of cargo ships which has come to be known as the "R.U. (Broad Unit) fleet" on the other side. Bottom left picture shows one of the new Canadian Pacific box cars, deliveries of which began in about the same time as the heavy grain movement from the prairies to the coast following last year's harvest.

The Call did not come to the front last week. It is the custom of a large number of weeklies in Canada to take a holiday between Christmas and New Year's so we just followed suit.

Mrs. and Mrs. W. MacCallum and barn is expected to last 40 years, rate two and a half percent per annum. The new farmer's truck is given a 20 percent or a life span of five years.

The true year average, which commenced in 1940, is explained in detail. By this system the farmer gets a chance to match good and bad years. The new farm account book will be 1948's biggest and best giveaway. The most precious possession a farmer has is time. This book is laid out to save the farmer hours of time, temper and worry. It is simple and direct and at the end of the year the farmer should be able to tell in a glance whether or not his income is tolerable in view of the many exemptions explained to him in this guide.

Most business houses in town report December business down compared with December 1946 throughout the country similar reports are heard.

In spite of the apparent commercialism of the age in which we live it is evident to any observer that the Canadian people are rapidly developing a greater appreciation of the beautiful. This is not confined to the wealthier classes, but extends to the great masses, in the towns, villages and in rural districts. New sections of olden towns are being laid out with wider streets, with provision for larger lawns, more trees, shrubbery and flowers, and a more attractive setting generally. Recently built houses show better architecture and greater harmony with their surroundings, while unsightly yard fences have largely disappeared. The net result of all these modern developments in beauty, and also from the satisfaction which it affords the eye, is that in dollars and cents, beautiful towns and villages attract people. They attract trade. It is natural that a person selecting a trading centre will choose a town that is beautiful and clean in presentation.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE (Taxation Division)

An Objective Of The F.A.O.

SIR JOHN BOYD ORR, in retiring from the position of director of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, has, in spite of the returning uncertainty regarding the stability of markets for farm products, firmly stated that "there is no chance for greater world food production than the people of the world need for good health, as far ahead as can be seen." It is unlikely that there is anyone in the world better qualified to make such a forecast than this noted British farmer, scientist and nutritionist who was recently elected to the British House of Commons as member for the Scottish Universities.

Was Known To Many Canadians

Leaving his home in Scotland two years ago, Sir John Boyd Orr, at the age of 64, went to Washington to be the head of the Food and Agriculture Organization, a project in which he was deeply interested. During his time there he became familiar with the problems relating to agriculture in Canada as well as in other countries, and he was well known to many Canadians. In connection with the work of the F.A.O., which is concerned mainly with providing a central point for the distribution of information regarding the production, distribution and consumption of food, and to promote international co-operation in these matters, Sir John continually stressed the great need for raising standards of nutrition.

Might Avert Future Wars

He further believes that there should be concern not only for those countries where food supplies are low, but also in many places where, in spite of a plentiful supply of food the people are poorly nourished because of lack of proper knowledge of nutrition. The great problem which has faced the F.A.O. and which is where, in spite of a plentiful supply of food reaches those who need it, and that sufficient is available to have healthy standards of nutrition everywhere. It is obvious that many economic considerations stand in the way of such an achievement, but in the opinion of Sir John Boyd Orr, if such objectives could be reached, there would be little likelihood of future wars.

PRINCESS SENDS THANKS FOR GIFTS

OTTAWA.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King read to the house of commons a letter of thanks from Princess Elizabeth for the wedding presents received from Canada.

The letter read: "I am most grateful to the government and people of Canada for the wedding present of such remarkable generosity which they have sent me. They have given me a collection of silver so magnificent, both in quality and in quantity, that my pride in its possession is only equalled by my pleasure that the people of Canada should have seen fit to express their goodwill toward me in this way."

"Not content with this splendid present they have sent me in addition a milk coat of absolute perfection. Whenever I put it on, as I very often shall, it will remind me of the moving tributes and marks of affection which have reached me from all over Canada during these last few weeks and which have left a very deep impression on me."

"I look forward to the day when the Duke of Edinburgh and I will be able to visit Canada, to thank its citizens in person for their kindness towards us, and to learn to know the country and the people as we most earnestly desire to do."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

THE STRATEGIST

By DONALD J. MacLEOD

GLoom hung like a fog over the small room. Both Joe Winsor and his sister Anne faced their eyes on the pale green door of their mother's room. Silently the door opened and a shadow detached itself from the doorway. Dr. Miller stood before them and shook his head.

"I'm sorry, Joe, sorry Anne. She's gone."

Anne put her face in her hands and her red hair spilled over her shoulders. Joe suddenly eyed his sister as he pattered his cigarette. Dr. Miller put his arm around Anne. "She didn't suffer, Anne. She went quickly. Have a good cry, you'll feel better."

"Sure let her cry, Doc," Joe said brusquely. "She fought with Ma for years." He lit a fresh cigarette and strode from the room.

When Anne got home, Bill Carson was sprawled on the sofa like a collapsed parachute. He had his forehead pulled over his face and an unpleasant odor floated about him. Anne slumped in the easy chair, and she set her hat back on his head and equaled.

"Where you been, over at your old lady's again?"

Anne winced. "Please, Bill. You needn't worry about Mother. She's gone. She's dead."

Anne's voice was black coffee to his befogged brain. His bloodshot eyes turned around the room and rested on his wife.

"Dead, huh? Well, you yuh goot fight with now?"

"You're the only reason Mother was quarrelled. Mother wanted me but I thought if you loved me enough you'd stop drinking."

Bill flinched to feel his tie and brush the hair out of his eyes.

"That's?" Bill said. "What a pretty speech. Let me tell you one thing, just one thing, I'm as good as dead. You can't win."

Anne passed her hand over her forehead. "Bill, please. I don't feel like going over all that again. I'm going to lie down for a while."

"Yah, go ahead. Lie down as long as you want. You didn't hear me, little Bill. You didn't hear me."

Bill beamed to the door and carefully pulled it behind him.

Anne sighed, kicked off her pumps and slipped the flowered jersey down over her head. She laid beneath the sheet and closed her eyes. The years began to march before her in review. It was away back, she couldn't have been more than ten when Dad died and Mother started planning her life and Joe's. That was the trouble. Mother planned very detail, where they went, whom they associated with, and she had always been mother's little white-haired boy—he never questioned her plans.

A few more years hustled past and Mother began to suggest Jimmy would make a good husband. He was something deeper. She had believed, not because he was only a clever clerk but because she had never mother had picked him. It seemed like yesterday she had been in the kitchen, bustling about, and she had said to him—

"Jimmy was wondering if you'd go skating Saturday night, Anne."

"First I've heard of it, Mother. Anyway, I'm going out with Bill Carson."

"Jimmy phoned when you were out, dear. That Carson boy isn't good for you, he drinks."

"Not too much. I can arrange my own dates, Mother."

"I know, Anne, but Jimmy's such a nice boy."

Anne threw the tea towel over the rack.

"You've said it a million times, Mother. I'm sick of hearing it. Bill loves me and I'm going to marry him."

Anne still remembered the hurt that came into her mother's eyes. After the wedding, just before they left on their honeymoon, Anne noticed a strange look in her eyes. Anne laughed uneasily.

"Don't worry, Mother, we'll be happy."

Their marriage had been a series of cautious making his way and hailing Bill out of jail. Bill was patient each time, like a little boy who'd been caught stealing apples.

"It won't happen again, Anne."

U.S. May Lease Land For B.C. Highway

Canada May Have 39-Year Lease On 15 Miles In Washington State

VICTORIA, B.C.—Canada may have a 39-year lease on 15 miles of United States land—in the State of Washington—when plans are completed for construction of Victory highway as part of the southern trans-continental road system.

Works Minister E. C. Carson has been granted permission to put surveys in the field in Washington state next spring to map the route.

The highway would cut south from Grand Forks, B.C., swing through American territory close to the international border, and cut back into British Columbia, near Rossland.

It would eliminate 55 miles of tortuous, mountainous side climbs over two summits, and would save $2,000,000 in construction costs.

Final decision on leasing terms will have to come through negotiations with the United States government at Ottawa and Washington, D.C., but it has been suggested a 39-year lease would be preferable to giving the territory ceded outright.

SNIFFED, FOUND ROBBERIES

LOOT—When two men were reported acting suspiciously about 20 miles from the scene of robbery at Stranraer, B.C., RCMP dogs, Lett and Ignatz, were taken to the area to pick up the scent. Within a few hours Lett had located both men—F. Baker and F. Johnson, well-known criminals, according to the RCMP—hiding in patches of brush and grass.

The second dog, Ignatz, shown here, sniffed out the dog's nest near where Baker had been hiding. The dog contained the 8000 stolen cash, a bottle of explosive and a detonator.

Menonites To Quit Canada

Twenty-Three Families To Leave Central Saskatchewan

GOULDSTOWN, Sask.—Twenty-three Menonite families will leave this west central Saskatchewan district for a new life in a new continent as soon as they can arrange transportation.

Numbering approximately 80, they will join more than 2,000 from Menonite communities at Humboldt and Altona, Man., in a migration that will carry them more than 4,000 miles to central Paraguay in South America.

Most of them belong to the Sommerfeldt sect, one of the four sects of the Menonite Church, whose history has been marked by frequent migrations in search of religious freedom. Some of the migrants came from Russia in the original Menonite influx into Canada between 1870 and 1875, but most of them are children of the original settlers and were born in Menonite communities scattered between Moose Jaw and Swift Current, Sask.

No definite reason for the migration has been given, but such moves are not considered uncommon. Shortly before the war, a large group of Swift Current area for Mexico. Most of the GouldstOWN group already have disposed of their property and are ready to leave when transportation can be arranged.

The sect originated in Holland in the 17th century and migrated first to Prussia, then to Russia, to escape the latter persecution that followed their settlement there. When they came to Russia in the 18th century, they were always refused on religious grounds, they came to North America.

In South America they plan to establish the same type of communal farming village they built in the West during the early days of settlement.

First printer in the western hemisphere was Giovanni Palazzi of Mexico City, in 1650.

If all our wishes could come true for every reader of these words, this New Year would bring joy not sorrow, pleasure and not pain, freedom from anxiety and fear of the future for which we are praying. Yet hope as we may, pray as we may, the past has taught us that:

"Every year has its winter. And every winter has its rain— But the day is always coming." This brief greeting is something more than just an annual formula message to our readers. It is personal word from our heart to the heart of each one of you who reads it.

CAN YOU REMEMBER

When the family that had a bath tub was using the "stuck up" When the bootjack was an indispensable household article.

When kerosene was bought at the corner store by the quart.

When there was a thousand wallop in each sole of man's carpet slipper.

When a fellow who owned a buggy and a toppy looking horse was considered a sport and a spendthrift.

When bottles and tilters rounded out the female form divine.

When we used to write verses in a girl's autograph album with purple ink.

When you never could tell whether or not the girl you took to a party, and a mole on her shoulder or a skinny neck.

When you helped the Band of Hope

Herb's Store, Gleichen Marshall's Drug 283, 8 Av. E. Calgary

serve chicken dinner and it was a real chicken dinner.

When the clothing merchant doubled in a pair of elastic suspenders if you paid cash for your suit.

When the old family photograph album and the family Bible always had a place of honor on the "what not" corner of the parlor.

Yes they were the dear old days. They will never return, we think. But we really believe there was more contented happiness all round than there is today with all our modern ways, fringes and possessions.

Three Men Testify

All "Co-op" Officials
All favour keeping Grain Exchanges open

Read what two of them said before United States Congressional Committee on December 4th and what Mr. Davis said in St. Louis recently.

Testimony of Mr. Herman Skyberg:

Mr. Herman Skyberg, President of the Farmers' Co-operative Marketing Association of East Grand Forks, Minnesota, said:

"With the present marketing system (Grain Exchange and 'futures' markets) we have protection and do not have to carry the risk. As our manager buys grain from former producers he sells 'futures' in the Minneapolis Grain Exchange. This gives us security and insurance." His co-operative favoured continuation of open markets and "futures" trading. "The co-operative directors had unanimously approved of his statement of the Congressional hearing committee for their grain be continued in operation."

Remember—his co-operative members received double the price co-operative members got in Canada, where the wheat price is controlled by Government.

Testimony of Mr. Roy Crawford:

Mr. Roy Crawford, General Manager of a large Kansas Co-operative with 250 locals said,

"The 'futures' market of the Grain Exchange in our case principally Kansas City and to some extent Chicago are vital present distributive system which we use in the disposing of our farmers' grain."

Mr. Crawford said his members did not favour closing what is sometimes called "The Speculative Market" because, he added,

"The speculator gives to their markets, breadth and liquidity and that the grain market provides buying power by concentrating in one general market place. Millers, the processors, domestic dealers, exporters and the individual risk takers or speculators."

Statement of Mr. John H. Davis:

Speaking in St. Louis recently, John H. Davis, Executive Vice-President of National Council of Co-operatives, said,

"The principle role of government in a long-range agricultural policy should be to assist in research, education and adjustment."

We should depend on free enterprise to provide the markets. We can't call it a free market when the government maintains production restrictions and price controls on agricultural products. The government's mechanism of adjustment is maintaining the mechanism of controls and subsidies for us in an emergency such as occurred in 1913. However, we hope to stay as far away as possible from restriction of production and subsidizing of prices."

Despite these testimonies the Canadian "Pools" want to close the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, although between them, they own ten memberships in it. And their members are actively Farmers? The simple fact is that the Leaders of the Pools want to close the Exchange to get a vice-like monopoly control.

Farmers are cordially invited to visit the Exchange during trading hours, 9:30 to 1:15 p.m. Ask to see the President or Secretary, or any other member. Ask questions. Straight answers will be given.

All our members favour a "floor" price for wheat administered by the Canadian Wheat Board. But they also believe that farmers should have the opportunity to get top world prices NOW, through open markets, while prices are high.

The more farmers know about the Exchange, the better it will be for all concerned. Meanwhile mail the coupon below for booklet explaining the Canadian Wheat Board Act and how you are regulated and controlled by it, in its present form.

MR. FARMER—
